

Promoting physiotherapy practice & development: new resources & opportunities

Update from CSP Practice & Development
Gwyn Owen, CSP Professional Advisor in Wales

AHP Advisory fitness for work report

Use the report to provide information to the employee and the employer on the functional impact of the patient's reported problem, and suggest options that support the patient to remain in, or return to work.

CSP position statement on physiotherapy and physical exercise

Content of position statement is aligned with CSP's LoveActivity campaign.

<http://www.csp.org.uk/documents/csp-position-statement-physiotherapy-physical-activity>

Position statement key messages:

- Physical activity contributes to health improvement and can substantially reduce the burden of ill-health and unnecessary disability in our society
- Physiotherapists and physiotherapy support workers have the expertise in promoting and delivering physical activity interventions, particularly supporting people with long term conditions and those recovering from illness and injury
- Every contact with a patient is an opportunity to provide physical activity advice, in line with UK Physical Activity guidelines
- The physiotherapy workforce is ideally placed to provide leadership and work in partnership with other health professionals, the third sector and leisure services to ensure people have access to the right support and guidance at all stages of their life
